Please replace the paragraph beginning at page 20, line 16, with the following rewritten paragraph:

Subsequent in time, the AutoReorder system generates an order event trigger that triggers ordering of each depleted (or soon to be depleted) toner (or other consumable). This process repeats from this point forward. The AutoReorder system then sends an email order alert to one or more purchasers, depending on which purchaser is responsible for ordering which consumable, or toner. Each purchaser (or individual with access to the AutoReorder system) can view details of the order list. Subsequently, the purchaser can modify the order list. An individual with access to the AutoReorder list (such as a purchaser or a maintainer) can request updated reseller lists, order options, and other details from a website maintained by a device manufacturer, such as ~~www.hp.com~~, www (dot) hp (dot) com, related to purchase transactions for consumable and/or maintenance. The device manufacturer website then sends update information to the AutoReorder system.
